

RATS!

I screwed up. On the cover of this newsletter, it says that the AMA Nats will feature a scale slope soaring fun fly.

That's not exactly true.

There will be a slope soaring fun fly—open to any type of slope glider, including scale and power scale—on Monday and Tuesday, July 17-18. And there will be a sport-scale competition, but it's not a slope soaring event. It's being held in conjunction with the thermal contests.

I got the two confused, and that's why the cover photo caption is in error. The story by Tom Culmsee on page 8 gives all the correct information

Sorry, guys. I really "dumb thumbed" it on that one!

By the way, you do have to be an AMA member to fly in the Nats. There's a membership application on page 10.
